REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Having complied with the required duties in regard to visiting the schools, at the commencement and close of each term, I come now as requested, to report the progress and general condition of all the schools for the past year. Having had but a very little knowledge or acquaintance with the schools in former years, I am unable to make comparisons; but have reason to believe that their progress has been satisfactory. We have undoubtedly too many small schools for the interest of the town, and benefit of the scholars; and how this can be remedied I am unable to advise, and yet I am well persuaded the money is used to a great disadvantage. Some of the school houses are in a very bad condition, and should be remedied immediately. I am happy to state that in most of the schools, the parents and patrons have manifested an interest by being present at the close of each term, as it unquestionably inspires emulation in scholars, and encouragement to the teachers and committee. I find in many of our schools, not only the common branches of English education, required by law, but also the higher studies, such as Geometry, Astronomy, Physiology, Philosophy, Composition, &c. I have made no change in text books except in Geographies, and the reason for that was, I found in a single school, no less than five different kinds of geographies; and you can imagine what a perplexity to a teacher to have so many classes, and more than that, they were paying twice the amount that they now pay for a better geography. I have been some troubled by teachers, particularly by those employed from out of town, by introducing books that were used in their town or perhaps they had become acquainted with at some academy they had attended, thereby putting out of use the books that had been ordered by former Committees, which is all wrong, indeed I should not feel myself justified in speaking or insinuating against a book legally placed in the schools by my predecessors, for fear it might appear prejudicial to the pupil. In all my visits I have received uniform kindness from ~~Committees~~ Teachers, Parents and Scholars, and have nothing to complain of in that respect.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

NATHANIEL MANNING, Agent.—Estella P. Stevens, Teacher. This is a small school; scholars young, having had but little advantages, appearing very industrious, showing a respectable improvement, for so short a term, both in their education and morals. I understand in some of their former years they have had but one term during the year. WINTER TERM, taught by Lucie S. Stiles. This was a term of eight weeks, of decided improvement in all the studies pursued, showing great energy and labor on the part of the teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

JAMES WARREN, Agent.—Hattie C. Andrews, Teacher. The Summer term of this school, the scholars were small and young, requiring the personal attention of the teachers, which Miss Andrews appeared very ready and faithful in bestowing, thereby making a very respectable improvement. SECOND TERM, taught by Miss Sarah A. Farley. This was a term of twelve weeks of a decided success; and at the examination, order good, great improvement, particularly in reading and geography, some very fine specimens in map-drawing, indeed, showing great progress in all branches pursued.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

REV. W. R. COCHRAN, Agent. Miss Mary A. Campbell, teacher. This was a term of nine weeks, scholars, small in number and age, where not much could be expected, but at the end of the term showed a commendable improvement and a faithfulness on the part of the teacher. SECOND TERM, taught by Miss Lucie S. Stiles, scholars all young, a term of ten weeks of marked improvement in all branches studied, manifesting a patience, aptness and perseverance adapted to her peculiar charge.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

CALVIN BATES, Agent.—Miss Mary L. Kelso, Teacher. Miss Kelso taught both terms, scholars all appearing very happy and industrious, some quite advanced in mathematics, grammar, astronomy, &c., and showing in all studies good improvement in their education and morals; discipline such as would give success in any school.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

GEORGE PRINCE, Agent.—Elizabeth C. Kendall, Teacher. Miss Kendall has taught two terms, a Fall and Winter Term; is an experienced teacher of high order. The last examination was a very successful one, very fine exhibitions in reading, mathematics, geography, grammar, and indeed their answers to the questions in all their studies were prompt and correct, showing they had been properly taught. Their concert reading was equal to any that I have ever heard.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

DAVID McCOLLOM, Agent.—SUMMER TERM, Miss Hattie E. Eaton, Teacher. This school at the examination and close, presented an anomalism scarcely to be met with; some scholars in arithmetic and grammar, understanding syntax much better than orthography, or etymology; and had also passed over the rules of mathematics at the first part of arithmetic. This state of things seemed to trouble the teacher, who appeared well apprised of the fact and stated she had done what she could to avoid it, but I think did not have that order and control over the school necessary for its proper advancement. SECOND TERM.—JONATHAN KING, Agent.—Miss Ellen M. Tucker, Teacher. This was a term of only eight weeks, and at its close I think I never witnessed a greater reformation in any school; some very fine specimens in reading, grammar and arithmetic; a class in algebra giving us some fine illustrations, and also repeating their rules in arithmetic and grammar, with the sounds of the vowels and consonants, &c.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

CHARLES GOODRICH, Agent.—Rebecca C. Cristy, Teacher. The Summer Term of this school, the scholars all small and young. This was Miss Cristy's first attempt at teaching, and not having pupils advanced enough to bring out her acquirements, I could not form an opinion what she might do if otherwise, and yet those she had appeared orderly, having made great improvement. WINTER TERM. Taught by Miss Mary E. Woodbury. This was a term of fourteen weeks, most of the scholars young, none much advanced; but at the examination, they had made good improvement, particularly in arithmetic, respecting their rules, and answering the questions in orthography, etymology, &c., discovering the faithfulness of the teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

EBEN L. BARTLETT, Agent.—Miss Sarah L. Cochran, Teacher. This was a large Primary School; of all young scholars, needing the personal time and attention of the teacher in order to make progress in their studies. Miss Cochran showed a tact and adaptness for such a school, not often met with, giving great satisfaction to most of her patrons.

SUMMER TERM of Upper or Grammar School, taught by Miss Ellen M. Tucker. This is a Graded or Grammar School; and the examination at the close of a short term of eight weeks, exhibited one of a high character; order good, lessons well recited, in all branches studied, showing that they had begun at the root of the matter. Miss Tucker is a fine disciplinarian, of ample qualifications, giving universal satisfaction.

WINTER TERM.—Teacher of Lower or Primary School, Miss Carrie M. Cochran. Miss Cochran is an experienced teacher of a high reputation, yet her discipline did not quite suit all; but I am satisfied she had bad boys that needed to be governed, and if they had been obedient there would not have been any cause for complaint. There has been much sickness during the term, that has interrupted the progress of the school; notwithstanding, at the examination, the classes answered their questions in mental arithmetic, geography, &c. very finely for so small children, giving some of the best specimens of educational training of little scholars.

WINTER TERM of the Grammar, or Upper School, taught by Miss Sarah E. Teel. This is a Grammar or Graded School; not having small or backward scholars; it presents a different appearance from any other school in town, and where we had a right to expect much at the examination we were not disappointed. The order, and lessons recited were of a high order, exhibiting a general improvement in all the higher branches taught in grammar schools; also, the educational abilities of the teacher, and her tact and aptness to teach.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

JAMES JONES, Agent.—Flora Gregg, Teacher. This was Miss Gregg's first effort at teaching; she had a very small school in number, and young; not enough of talent to bring out her ability as a teacher, but discovered to me a patience and faithfulness that is praiseworthy in any teacher; giving good satisfaction.—School House miserable. FALL TERM, taught by Miss Mary F. Atwood. This was a term of only six weeks. At the examination I was pleasantly struck with the order and the systematic training the scholars were getting, showing her knowledge of the most modern and systematic manner of training a school, both in science and morals.

DISTRICT NO. 10.

ROBERT BROWN, Agent.—Letitia M. Adams, Teacher. This was a school of only one short term for the year. But before the term expired the old house got on fire, and burned so much that they were obliged to abandon the house and school. I visited the school at the commencement, and found a small, backward school, all appearing very industrious and quiet.

DISTRICT NO. 11.

FRANK RICHARDS, Agent.—Cornelia Davis, Teacher. Miss Davis was a teacher of some experience, kind-hearted and capable, but did not have that control over her pupils necessary for good order. If scholars were disposed to make progress in their studies, she was ready and very able to assist them. WINTER TERM, taught by Miss Abbie J. Cross. This was the commencement of Miss Cross' teaching and at the close of the term the school appeared very finely, lessons good, questions answered understandingly and promptly; showing a tact and ability requisite for a good teacher. Order good.

DISTRICT NO. 12.

ELZAPHUM LANGDELL, Agent.—Mrs. Lydia S. Langdell, Teacher. This is a Union School, part from Francetown, the terms being divided between the two towns. Mrs. L. is an experienced and highly successful teacher. Although a small school, yet some of the scholars exhibited quite an advanced knowledge of arithmetic, grammar, astronomy, reading, &c., not often equaled of their age.

DISTRICT NO. 13.

DAVID TODD, Agent.—Teachers of the Summer term of ten weeks, Miss Letitia M. Adams and Miss Lydia A. Dodge. Miss Adams is a teacher of some experience, and not wanting in her education, but did not give satisfaction, and after teaching 4 1-2 weeks withdrew, and Miss Dodge kept the remainder of the term. The examination at the close showed improvement, particularly in the elementary rules of grammar, arithmetic, &c., also the sounds of the vowels, accent, emphasis, cadence, &c. WINTER TERM, taught by Miss Emma A. George, of Francestown. At the close of this term, the examination was very satisfactory; the recitations all good, particularly grammar, arithmetic, and reading, questions promptly answered in all the elementary rules, order good, and a decided improvement in every respect.

DISTRICT NO. 14.

ALMON LUFKIN, Agent.—Miss Georgia A. Holt, Teacher. This was her first attempt at teaching, and I think labored hard for the welfare of her pupils. Her manner in school was prompt, energetic discovering to me many qualifications for a good teacher; school small. Miss Holt was teacher for both terms, her examination showed a respectable improvement.

DISTRICT NO. 15.

HIRAM L. WILSON, Agent.—Mrs. H. R. Wilson, Teacher. This is a small backward school; this year two short terms of five weeks each, last year not as much. At the examination every thing appeared quiet and orderly, scholars seemed industrious, making a very respectable improvement in their studies; Mrs. Wilson appearing a very faithful teacher. SECOND TERM.—Newman J. Wilson, Teacher. Mr. Wilson proved himself a very faithful and patient teacher, laboring hard to train and advance his pupils, who had made a very reputable improvement.

DISTRICT NO. 16.

EDGAR A. RICHARDS, Agent.—Miss Abbie H. Barnard, Teacher. This was the commencement of Miss Barnard's teaching. The examination at the close of the term, gave evidence of the ability and faithfulness of the teacher, showing a respectable advance in their studies, but a want of promptness in answering their questions. It gave me great satisfaction to see so many parents out at the examination, showing an interest in their children. SECOND TERM.—DAVID H. TEWKSBURY, Agent.—Miss Lydia A. Dodge, Teacher. Miss Dodge is an experienced teacher that this district has perfect confidence in; which is of great value and support to a teacher; and during this term has given evidence of having labored successfully in advancing her pupils. The classes in reciting, arithmetic, and grammar, exhibited an advanced stage in their studies, and also in the elementary principles of an English education. The greatest difficulty I found was a want of prompt and distinct answers to questions that they understood.

DISTRICT NO. 17.

PERRY RICHARDS, Agent.—Mary Richards, Teacher. This is a Union School of Weare and New Boston, most of the scholars from Weare. At my first visit I found this school very deficient in orthography and etymology, they could not tell me what a vowel was, or accent, emphasis, cadence, &c., but at the close of a short term, I found a great change in this respect, the school having advanced in all the studies pursued, giving evidence of the ability and faithfulness of the teacher.
